On December 12, 2007, IBS submitted a letter to the Company in which it expressed its concerns regarding recent developments at the Company as well as the Company's declining stock price and overall performance. IBS further expressed its view that certain governance changes needed to be made at the Company. Specifically, IBS called for the current three-member board of directors to be expanded to five directors, and for two independent directors to be added to the board who were not affiliated with the management of the Company or IBS. The letter also stated that IBS was prepared to offer the names of two individuals who were not affiliated with IBS and who would act in the best interests of all shareholders. Finally, IBS recommended that the newly constituted board then form a special committee comprised of the independent directors to investigate the conduct of the Company's former management. IBS urged the company to take all of the foregoing steps immediately.

Subsequent to sending the letter, the Company announced that it had increased the number of members of its board of directors from three directors to five directors and had elected two independent directors, whose names were offered by IBS. The Company also announced that its board of directors formed a special committee to, among other things, investigate the conduct of the Company's former management.
