Barclays Board Pre-AGM update

In the usual way, Barclays has had extensive engagement with a number of major shareholders over the course of the past few weeks regarding the remuneration report that was published on 9 March 2012.

Recognising the strength of opinion expressed by some shareholders, via those meetings, and the Executive Directors' confidence in the future performance of the bank, consistent with public commitments and shareholders' expectations, Bob Diamond, Chief Executive and Chris Lucas, Group Finance Director have volunteered to subject their 2011 bonus awards, which were awarded all in shares and fully deferred over three years, to a further condition. That condition is as follows: that one-half (50%) of their deferred bonus award that may vest in each year will not pay out until Barclays return on equity exceeds its cost of equity and, if that condition is not met, the potential pay out caught by it will be subject to lapse if it is not met within three years from the date of the award. It has been agreed to apply this further condition.

Barclays is fully committed to ensuring that a greater proportion of income and profits flow to shareholders notwithstanding that it operates within the constraints of a competitive market.

In 2011, Barclays made progress in this regard. Total incentive awards fell 26%; dividends increased 9%, whilst profits were down 3%, despite the impact of the economic and regulatory environment on the performance of the business. The Board expects further progress over time.

As previously stated, Barclays regards the returns produced in 2011 to be unacceptable on an absolute basis, even though they were strong on a relative basis. Barclays has taken, and continues to take, measures to improve returns. Barclays remains firmly committed to delivering a 13% return on equity as soon as possible. It will take time to reach this target given: the current economic headwinds, particularly in Europe; the extra capital the business is required to hold by UK authorities; legacy positions; the need to accommodate further incremental regulatory costs; implementation of Basel III and our commitment not to increase gearing.

Achieving this target of 13% return on equity will allow the portion of post-tax profits that are distributed as dividends to normalise at a level much higher than today, and Barclays intends to continue to make steady progress towards that as the return on equity improves. The combination of higher earnings and a higher dividend payout ratio will allow a significant increase in the absolute level of dividends received by shareholders.
