He also co-led the independent review of the report that the FSA produced into the failure of Royal Bank of Scotland.

Commenting, Marcus Agius said, "Barclays is fortunate to have attracted Sir David Walker to succeed me as Chairman. He will be taking over at a time when Barclays universal banking model is delivering a strong performance in difficult markets. I wish him every success as he leads Barclays at this important time."

Sir John Sunderland, who led the process to appoint a successor to Marcus Agius, said today, "I am delighted that Sir David Walker has accepted the Board's invitation to become Chairman. Sir David commands great respect within the financial services industry and will bring immense experience, integrity and knowledge to the role."

Sir David Walker commented "I am looking forward to joining the Barclays Boards and to playing my part in taking the company forward after recent events. The UK needs a strong financial services sector and Barclays has a crucial role to play in ensuring that this country has a successful, well-governed banking industry. My immediate priority, and critical to Barclays ongoing success, will be the appointment of a new Chief Executive and I will be fully engaged in that process."
