

TRANE INC.
Form 425
April 21, 2008

Filed by Trane Inc.

Pursuant to Rule 425 under the Securities Act of 1933 and deemed filed pursuant to Rule 14a-12 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934

Subject Company: Trane Inc.

Commission File No.: 1-11415

The following is information provided to Trane employees on April 21, 2008.

1. Does Ingersoll Rand currently offer a Roth 401(k) arrangement to its employees? If not, are there any plans to do so in 2009?

Like Trane, Ingersoll Rand does not offer a Roth 401(k). However, as part of the integration process, the company will review the viability of this benefit.

2. Company contributions to the Savings Plan/Employee Stock Ownership Plan (ESOP) and 401k/Thrift Plan are measured in units. Has it been determined how many units are in a share of Trane stock?

You are correct that the Trane stock fund is a unitized stock fund. This means that it contains two components: company stock and short-term investments such as cash. In a unitized stock fund, you own units instead of shares. Currently, the ratio of shares to units is 1.1191 shares for each unit. This ratio will change if the percentage in short-term investments changes.

At the closing of the sale, the underlying Trane stock in the fund (and not the short-term investments) will be valued at the same $36.50 in cash and .23 of IR stock per share, just as with all other Trane shareholders. Any change in the ratio of shares to units prior to the close will not change the value of the underlying Trane stock.

3. Does Ingersoll Rand offer same-sex domestic partner benefits to employees? If not, are they considering this as part of the integration-planning process?

No, Ingersoll Rand does not currently offer same-sex domestic partner benefits. Ingersoll Rand will continue same-sex domestic partner coverage for Trane employees for a period of one year after the close of the sale. In addition, as part of our process to develop an integrated benefits program, Ingersoll Rand will assess current plans and consider whether to make changes, including offering same-sex domestic partner benefits more broadly.

4. Is the elimination of the ESPP plan a foreshadowing of what Trane employees can expect with regard to future compensation and benefits changes once we become part of Ingersoll Rand?

No, that decision is not an indication of any such changes. We had to suspend the ESPP because, once the sale is complete, Trane stock will no longer be publicly traded. Therefore, no one, including our employees, will be able to buy Trane stock after the sale

Upon the completion of the Ingersoll Rand transaction, the ESPP will officially terminate. Ingersoll Rand does not offer an ESPP. The fact that we suspended the ESPP when we did does not reflect Ingersoll Rand's general intentions regarding compensation and benefits.

5. When will we know more about benefit plan changes for Trane employees?

The integration-planning process has begun, and we will communicate information in advance of the time when any changes would take effect.

6. What are Ingersoll Rand's plans where it concerns the service arm of both companies?

There's an integration team led by Larry Wash, Danilo Elez and Scott Krull, their counterpart at Ingersoll Rand, to better understand both service businesses. At this time, no decisions have been made about how the two service organizations will interact. However, the Ingersoll Rand team is impressed with the depth of this part of our business and our service people. In the meantime, we will not compromise Trane service growth and are committed to the critical investments we're making, such as recruiting and hiring, technician mobility, new Trane uniforms, training and others.

7. What will become of Trane (NYSE:TT) stock once we are officially part of Ingersoll Rand?

As part of the sale agreement, Ingersoll Rand is, in effect, purchasing all the outstanding Trane shares at the offer of $36.50 plus .23 of a share of Ingersoll Rand stock (NYSE: IR) as of the date of the sale. Once the acquisition is complete, Ingersoll Rand will be the sole shareowner of Trane stock, which will no longer be publicly traded.

8. I thought we would not see any changes in compensation and benefits before the close (see Q&A Future Plans #21). Will the value of the ESPP benefit be replaced by something else since IR does not offer a similar plan?

The covenant in the sale agreement provides for compensation and benefits that are to be not less favorable in the aggregate to Trane employees who remain with the Ingersoll Rand family of companies for one year after the acquisition. This language specifically excludes consideration of any equity-based or stock-based benefits plans, including the Employee Stock Purchase Plan (ESPP). While Ingersoll Rand does not offer a similar plan to our ESPP, the company allows U.S. employees to purchase stock through its 401(k) plan.

As we have said before, the ESPP was suspended following the March 31 purchase period for reasons outside of our control. See Q. 4 for those details.

9. Will tuition reimbursement continue after the sale of Trane to Ingersoll Rand?

Like Trane, Ingersoll Rand offers a tuition reimbursement program, and tuition reimbursement will continue after the sale date. The benefits integration-planning team is in the process of evaluating and aligning all benefit plans and programs, including this one, for the combined company. Once decisions have been reached, you will receive further communication.

10. Will Ingersoll Rand continue the partnership with other companies by providing employee discounts? Currently, we get discounts from Dell, Ford, GM, etc.

Integration-planning teams are assessing all discount arrangements currently in place for Ingersoll Rand and Trane employees. Information will be forthcoming regarding all discount programs as we approach the close date.

(Trane) shareholders and requires registration of the shares of Ingersoll-Rand Company Limited (Ingersoll Rand) to be issued in the merger.
