As of May 12, 2009, there were 12,865,145 shares of Common Stock issued and outstanding. The Common Stock is listed on the NASDAQ Global Market under the symbol LGTY.

On December 15, 1997, the Board of Directors approved a resolution authorizing the Company to repurchase up to 350,000 shares of Common Stock through open market purchases at prevailing market prices. The Company completed this repurchase plan in November 1998, at which time the Company adopted an additional repurchase plan for up to 800,000 shares. In February 2003, the Board of Directors approved a resolution authorizing the Company to repurchase an additional 400,000 shares for a total authorized repurchase amount of 1,550,000 shares. The timing of any repurchases would depend on market conditions, the market price of Logility's common stock and management's assessment of the Company's liquidity and cash flow needs.

During fiscal year 2008, the Company purchased 144,421 shares for approximately $1.1 million under the current authorized share buyback program. Under all repurchase plans, through July 14, 2008, the Company had purchased a cumulative total of approximately 1.5 million shares at a total cost of approximately $9.2 million. In the first quarter of fiscal year 2009, the Company purchased 39,620 shares of Common Stock at an average price of $7.49 per share for a total price of approximately $296,841. In the second quarter of fiscal year 2009, the Company purchased 27,122 shares of Common Stock at an average price of $6.69 per share for a total price of approximately $181,326. ITEM 2. Identity and Background of Filing Person

Name and Address

Tender Offer

This Statement relates to the tender offer by American Software, Inc., a Georgia corporation (American Software), to purchase all of the outstanding shares of Common Stock not currently owned by American Software (the Offer), at a price of $7.02 per share, net to the seller in cash (the Offer Price), without interest. The offer is disclosed in a Tender Offer Statement and Rule 13e-3 Transaction Statement filed under cover of Schedule TO (the Schedule TO) dated as of May 22, 2009 and filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the Commission). According to the Schedule TO, the Offer will expire at 12:00 midnight, New York City Time, on June 22, 2009, unless the Offer is extended.

American Software has stated that its obligation and right to purchase shares of Common Stock at the expiration of the Offer is subject to satisfaction of, or if permitted, waiver of, several conditions, including the non-waivable condition that there shall have been validly tendered and not withdrawn before the Offer expires shares of Common Stock that constitute at least a majority of the outstanding shares not owned by American Software or its affiliates or the directors and executive officers of American Software or Logility (other than directors of Logility who constitute the special committee of independent directors formed to consider the Offer) immediately prior to the expiration of the Offer (the Minimum Tender Condition). The Minimum Tender

Condition is not waivable. The Offer is on the terms and subject to a number of other conditions set forth in an offer to purchase, dated May 22, 2009 (the "Offer to Purchase") and filed as an exhibit to the Schedule TO and the related Letter of Transmittal and other documents filed as exhibits to the Schedule TO and mailed to the holders of shares of Common Stock (the "Transmittal Documents") together with this Statement.

American Software has stated that, if the Minimum Tender Condition is satisfied and American Software buys the tendered shares of Common Stock, it will be entitled to, and will, as soon as reasonably practicable, use the short-form merger provisions of Section 14-2-1104 of the Georgia Business Corporation Code (the "GBCC") to effect a merger between the Company and a wholly-owned subsidiary of American Software formed for the specific purpose of the merger, in which all shares of Common Stock held by the remaining shareholders would be converted into the right to receive cash equal to the same price per share as the Offer Price, without interest (the "Merger"). As further described in the Offer to Purchase, the Merger will result in each outstanding share of Common Stock (other than shares owned by American Software or its subsidiaries, and shares, if any, held by shareholders who are entitled to and who properly exercise dissenters' rights under Georgia law) being converted into the right to receive the same amount of cash consideration paid in the Offer.

The principal executive offices of American Software are located at 470 East Paces Ferry Road, N.E., Atlanta, Georgia 30305. Further information regarding American Software is contained in the Offer to Purchase under "The Tender Offer" Section 8 "Certain Information Concerning American Software."

With respect to all information described herein as contained in, or incorporated into the Schedule TO from, the Offer to Purchase and the Transmittal Documents, including information concerning American Software and its affiliates, officers or directors or actions or events with respect to any of them, the Company takes no responsibility for the accuracy or completeness of such information or for any failure by such parties to disclose events or circumstances that may have occurred and may affect the significance, completeness or accuracy of any such information.

ITEM 3. Past Contacts, Transactions, Negotiations and Agreements

Except as described in this Statement (including exhibits, annexes and any information incorporated herein by reference), to the best of the Company's knowledge, as of the date of this Statement, there are no material agreements, arrangements or understandings, or any actual or potential conflicts of interest, between the Company or its affiliates and (i) the Company's executive officers, directors or affiliates or (ii) American Software, or its executive officers, directors or affiliates.

Any information incorporated by reference herein shall be deemed modified or superseded for purposes of this Statement to the extent that any information contained herein modifies or supersedes such information.

Interests of Certain Persons in the Offer and Merger

In considering the recommendation with respect to the Offer set forth in this Statement, shareholders should be aware that certain executive officers and directors of Logility, and certain executive officers and directors of American Software, have interests in the Offer that are described in this Statement and the exhibits and annexes hereto and that may present such persons with certain actual or potential conflicts of interest with respect to the Offer. See "Interlocking Directors and Executive Officers" below for information regarding the interests of the Company's directors and executive officers in the Offer, including the fact that two out of the five directors are directors of American Software and that certain executive officers of Logility also serve as executive officers of American Software.

Executive Compensation and Employment Matters; Director Compensation

For a detailed description of the compensation programs applicable to the executive officers of the Company, as well as further information regarding director compensation, please see the Company's 2008 Proxy Statement under the section headings "Executive Compensation" and "Director Compensation," which sections are filed as an exhibit to this Statement and incorporated herein by reference. In addition, Annex A to this Statement, which is incorporated herein by reference, contains further details regarding the business and background of each of the Company's executive officers and directors.

Executive Compensation. The key elements of the Company's executive compensation program generally include a base salary, cash bonus and equity incentive compensation in the form of stock options, which are awarded through the incentive plans discussed below. In addition, the Company provides a variety of health, retirement and other benefits to all employees. The executive officers are eligible to participate in the benefit plan on the same basis as all other employees. These benefit plans include medical, dental, life and disability insurance. The executive officers do not receive any personal benefits or perquisites that are not available on a non-discriminatory basis to all employees except for limited supplemental insurance expense reimbursement and except for perquisites that the Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors has approved for J. Michael Edenfield and H. Allan Dow. None of the executives is a party to an employment agreement with the Company.

Director Compensation. During fiscal year 2008, the Company compensated directors who were not employed by the Company or its affiliates at the rate of $5,000 per annum, plus $1,000 for each meeting of the Board of Directors and $600 for each meeting of any committee of the Board that they attended. Directors are eligible to receive stock option grants under the incentive plans discussed below. Under the terms of the 2007 Stock Plan, directors who are not employed by the Company automatically receive stock option grants of 2,000 shares each upon his initial election and additional 1,000-share grants at the last day of each fiscal quarter thereafter, with exercise prices equal to the market price on those respective dates. These options become fully exercisable on the date of grant and expire six years after the grant date (ten years for options granted prior to March 2005). They do not terminate if the director ceases to serve on the Board of the Company after the options become exercisable. Under this program, Fredrick E. Cooper, Parker H. Petit and John A. White each received option grants totaling 4,000 shares in fiscal year 2008.

Incentive Plans

The Company has outstanding stock options granted under two stock option plans. The 1997 Stock Plan was adopted by the Board of Directors, approved by the sole shareholder of the Company in August 1997 and amended by the shareholders of the Company at the 1998 and 2006 Annual Meetings. This plan terminated effective August 7, 2007 and was replaced with the Logility, Inc. 2007 Stock Plan, approved at the 2007 Annual Meeting. The following are brief descriptions of these plans:

1997 Stock Plan. The Company has outstanding stock options granted under the Logility, Inc. 1997 Stock Plan. Options outstanding under the 1997 Stock Plan will remain in effect, but, since its termination, the Company will not grant new options under this Plan. As of April 30, 2008, there were outstanding under this Plan options to purchase 655,520 shares. The Company did not grant any stock appreciation right (SAR) units under the Plan.

2007 Stock Plan. On May 15, 2007, the Board of Directors adopted the 2007 Stock Plan, and the shareholders approved this Plan at the 2007 Annual Meeting. The Company has authorized a total of 500,000 shares for issuance pursuant to options granted under this Plan. As of April 30, 2008, under this Plan option holders have exercised no option shares, there are 14,000 option shares outstanding, and 486,000 shares remained available for stock option grants.

Under the 2007 Stock Plan, the Company may grant options to acquire up to an aggregate of 500,000 shares of Common Stock. Options may be granted to executive officers or other key employees of the Company or any subsidiary, an advisor or consultant to the Company or any subsidiary, or a member of the Board of Directors. Option grants to directors and to officers who are subject to Section 16 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 are intended to comply with the requirements of Rule 16b-3. Options may be either incentive stock options or nonqualified stock options. The Plan also allows the Company to grant up to 300,000 SAR units, with each unit being equivalent to one share of Common Stock. When a SAR unit is awarded, the unit grant price is established as the fair market value of one share of Common Stock on the date of the award. Upon exercise, the participant received, in cash (less tax and other withholdings) an amount equal to the excess of (i) the fair market value of the Common Stock on the date of exercise over (ii) the unit grant price, and with such excess being multiplied by (iii) the number of SAR units being exercised.

The number of options or SAR units granted will be determined by the particular committee that administers such grants. Option grants to non-employee directors shall be nonqualified stock options, the number of which is fixed by the Plan as follows: each non-employee director who is newly elected or appointed subsequent to the date on which the Plan becomes effective will be granted an option to purchase 2,000 shares of common stock upon his or her election or appointment, and thereafter will be granted an option to purchase 1,000 shares of common stock as of the last day of each fiscal quarter, beginning on the last day of the first full fiscal quarter following his or her election or appointment.

Ownership of Common Stock; Cash Consideration Payable Pursuant to the Offer

The table below shows the number of shares of Common Stock beneficially owned as of May 12, 2009 by the Company's executive officers and directors. Unless otherwise indicated, all shares are directly owned.

(a) James C. Edenfield is also a Director, President, Chief Executive Officer and Treasurer of American Software.

(b) Consists solely of shares held by American Software. Mr. Edenfield and Dr. Thomas L. Newberry have filed amended Schedule 13Gs with the Commission stating that they, acting as a group, share voting power with respect to all shares of American Software beneficially held by them. Mr. Edenfield and Dr. Newberry together own or have the option to acquire within 60 days 100% of the outstanding Class B Common Shares of American Software. If all Class B Common Shares were converted into Class A Common Shares, Mr. Edenfield and Dr. Newberry would share beneficial ownership of 3,171,811 Class A Common Shares of American Software, which would represent approximately 12.4% of the total Class A Common Shares after such conversion. Under the American Software articles of incorporation, the holders of Class B Common Shares, as a class, have the right to elect a majority of the Board of Directors of American Software. Accordingly, both Mr. Edenfield and Dr. Newberry may be deemed to share beneficial ownership of the Common Stock of Logility held by American Software by virtue of this voting control.

(c) J. Michael Edenfield is also a Director and Executive Vice President of American Software.

(d) Includes 74,000 shares of Common Stock subject to 60-day options.

(e) Consists of shares of Common Stock subject to 60-day options.

(f) Includes 40,000 shares of Common Stock subject to 60-day options.

(g) Includes 109,000 shares of Common Stock subject to 60-day options.

(h) Vincent C. Klinges is also Chief Financial Officer of American Software.

(i) James R. McGuone is also the Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary of American Software.

If the Company's directors and executive officers were to tender any shares of Common Stock they own for purchase pursuant to the Offer, they would receive the same cash consideration on the same terms and conditions as other shareholders of the Company. As of May 12, 2009, the Company's directors and executive officers owned in the aggregate 102,221 shares of Common Stock (excluding shares beneficially owned by James C. Edenfield that are held of record by American Software) and options to purchase an aggregate of 229,200 shares of Common Stock with an exercise price less than $7.02 per share. If the directors and executive officers were to tender all such shares of Common Stock (including shares issuable upon exercise of such options) for purchase pursuant to the Offer and those shares were accepted for purchase and purchased by American Software, the directors and executive officers would receive an aggregate of approximately $2.3 million in cash.

Indemnification of Directors and Officers

Sections 14-2-851 and 14-2-857 of the GBCC provide that a corporation may indemnify an individual who is a party to a proceeding because he or she is or was a director or an officer against liability incurred in the proceeding if such individual conducted himself or herself in good faith and reasonably believed: (i) in the case of conduct in his or her official capacity, that such conduct was in the best interests of the corporation; (ii) in all other cases, that such conduct was at least not opposed to the best interests of the corporation; and (iii) in the case of any criminal proceeding, that the individual had no reasonable cause to believe such conduct was unlawful.

The articles of incorporation and bylaws of the Company provide that, to the fullest extent permitted by the GBCC, as it may be amended from time to time, the Company may indemnify any and all of its directors and officers, or former directors and officers, or any person who may have served at the Company's request as a director, officer, partner, trustee, employee, or agent of another foreign or domestic corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, employee benefit plan, or other entity in connection with (a) proceedings by or in the right of the Company (except for reasonable expenses in connection with the proceeding if it is determined that the indemnitee has met the relevant standard of conduct) or (b) proceedings with respect to conduct for which the indemnitee was adjudged liable on the basis that the indemnitee improperly received personal benefit.

In addition, the bylaws of the Company provide that the Company may advance funds to pay or reimburse the reasonable expenses incurred by a director or officer who is a party to a proceeding because he or she is a director or officer if he or she delivers to the Company (i) a written affirmation of his or her belief that the standard of conduct necessary for indemnification has been met and (ii) a written undertaking by that person to repay amounts advanced or reimbursed if it is ultimately determined that the director is not entitled to indemnification. Under the bylaws, any amendment, modification, alteration or repeal of the indemnification provisions that limits or otherwise adversely affects the right of indemnification, advancement of expenses, or other rights of an indemnitee shall apply only to proceedings based on actions, events or omissions occurring after such amendment and after delivery of notice of such amendment to the indemnitee.

Edgar Filing: LOGILITY INC - Form SC 14D9

The Company has entered into, indemnification agreements with each of its directors. The indemnification agreements obligate the Company to indemnify the directors to the fullest extent permitted by the GBCC and, among other things, require the Company to indemnify the directors against any costs or expenses incurred in connection with any action related to the director's service to the Company (including in connection with the transactions contemplated by the Offer or the Merger). The indemnification agreements further require the Company to either extend the Company's existing directors' and officers' liability insurance for the longer of (i) the period during which Indemnitee shall be subject to any pending or possible indemnifiable claim and (ii) six years after Indemnitee ceases to serve as a director and/or officer of the Company.

The Company expects that all rights to indemnification and advancement of expenses currently in effect in favor of the present and former directors and officers of the Company, as provided in the Company's articles of incorporation and bylaws, with respect to matters occurring prior to the consummation of the Offer and any short-form merger will survive the consummation of the Offer and any short-form merger and will continue in full force and effect thereafter.

Special Committee

Due to American Software's majority interest in the Common Stock, the Company's Board of Directors recognized the potential for conflict of interest between the Company and American Software, and, on March 20, 2009, appointed a special committee of directors who are unaffiliated with American Software, consisting of Frederick E. Cooper, Parker H. Petit and John A. White (the "Special Committee"), to review, evaluate and make recommendations to the shareholders of the Company (other than American Software and its affiliates) and the Board of Directors of the Company with respect to the Offer. The Board of Directors also authorized the Special Committee to retain, at the expense of the Company, financial, legal and other advisors or consultants to assist and advise the Special Committee in connection with the performance of its duties. On May 4, 2009, Mr. Cooper resigned from the Special Committee for personal reasons.

As compensation for services rendered in connection with serving on the Special Committee, the members will each be paid $600 for each meeting of the Special Committee they attended and will also be reimbursed for any reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. In addition, the members of the Special Committee will be entitled to the indemnification provisions of the Company's articles of incorporation and bylaws to the same extent as any member of the Board of Directors of the Company acting as a director. Furthermore, as directors of the Company, the members of the Special Committee currently receive directors fees and other benefits, as disclosed above under the heading "Executive Compensation and Employment Matters; Director Compensation." American Software has stated that it anticipates appointing a new slate of directors in connection with consummation of the Merger.

Relationship with American Software

In November 1997, Logility completed an initial public offering of 2,530,000 shares of common stock. Prior to that time, Logility was a wholly owned subsidiary of American Software operating as the supply chain planning software group, warehouse management software group and transportation management group. In anticipation of such offering, Logility and American Software entered into a number of agreements for the purpose of defining certain relationships between the parties (the "Intercompany Agreements"). The more significant Intercompany Agreements are summarized below. As a result of American Software's ownership interest in Logility, the terms of such agreements were not the result of arms-length negotiation. Logility's management believes, however, that the fees for the various services provided do not exceed fees that would be paid if such services were provided by independent third parties.

Services Agreement

Logility and American Software have entered into a Services Agreement (the "Services Agreement") with respect to certain services to be provided by American Software (or subsidiaries of American Software) to Logility. The Services Agreement provides that such services are provided in exchange for fees equivalent to fees that would be paid if such services were provided by independent third parties. The services provided by American Software to Logility under the Services Agreement include, among other things, certain accounting, cash management, corporate development, employee benefit plan administration, human resources and compensation, general and administrative services, and risk management and tax services. In addition to these services, American Software has agreed to allow eligible employees of Logility to participate in certain of American Software's employee benefit plans.

Logility has agreed to reimburse American Software for American Software's costs (including any contributions and insurance premium costs and including third-party expenses and allocations of certain personnel expenses), generally in accordance with past practice, relating to the participation by Logility's employees in any of American Software's benefit plans.

The Services Agreement had an initial term of three years and is renewed automatically thereafter for successive one-year terms unless either Logility or American Software elects not to renew its term by giving proper notice. Logility will indemnify American Software against any damages that American Software may incur in connection with its performance of services under the Services Agreement (other than those arising from American Software's gross negligence or willful misconduct), and American Software will indemnify Logility against any damages arising out of American Software's gross negligence or willful misconduct in connection with its rendering of services under the Services Agreement. For the fiscal years ended April 30, 2008, 2007 and 2006, the amounts paid by Logility to American Software pursuant to this agreement were $1.3 million, $1.4 million and $1.3 million, respectively.

Facilities Agreement

American Software and Logility have entered into a Facilities Agreement (the "Facilities Agreement"), which provides that Logility may occupy space located in certain facilities owned or leased by American Software (or subsidiaries of American Software). The Facilities Agreement had an initial term of two years and is renewed automatically thereafter for successive one-year terms unless either American Software or Logility elects not to renew its term. The Facilities Agreement may be terminated upon 30 days' written notice by Logility for any reason with respect to any particular facility. Logility's leasing of space at any facility under the Facilities Agreement is limited by the term of the underlying lease between American Software and a landlord with respect to any facility leased by American Software and by the disposition by American Software of any facility owned by it. For the fiscal years ended April 30, 2008, 2007 and 2006, the amounts paid by Logility to American Software pursuant to this agreement were $428,000, $417,000 and $411,000, respectively. Included in these amounts are lease expense, utilities expense, telephone expense, and security expense.

Tax Sharing Agreement

Logility is included in American Software's federal consolidated (and certain state consolidated returns) income tax group, and Logility's federal and certain state income tax liability will be included in the consolidated federal and certain state income tax liability of American Software and its subsidiaries. Logility and American Software have entered into a Tax Sharing Agreement (the "Tax Sharing Agreement") pursuant to which American Software and Logility will make payments between them such that the amount of taxes to be paid by Logility, subject to certain adjustments, will be determined as though Logility were to file separate federal, state, and local income tax returns, rather than as a consolidated subsidiary of American Software. Pursuant to the Tax Sharing Agreement, under certain circumstances, Logility will be reimbursed for tax attributes that Logility generates after deconsolidation of Logility from the consolidated tax group of American Software, such as net operating losses and loss carry forwards. Deconsolidation is effective if and when American Software's ownership of Logility falls below 80%. No such deconsolidation is currently in process. Such reimbursement, if any, will be made for utilization of Logility's losses only after such losses are utilized by American Software. For that purpose, all losses of American Software and its consolidated income tax group will be deemed utilized in the order in which they are recognized. Logility will pay American Software a fee intended to reimburse American Software for all direct and indirect costs and expenses incurred with respect to American Software's share of the overall costs and expense incurred by American Software with respect to tax related services. In addition to other matters, Logility recognizes a payable to American Software when stock option benefits generated from American Software options exercised by Logility's employees are realized.

Technology License Agreement

American Software and Logility have entered into a Technology License Agreement (the "Technology License Agreement") pursuant to which Logility granted American Software a non-exclusive, worldwide license to use, execute, reproduce, display, modify, and prepare derivatives of the Logility Voyager Solutions product line, provided such license is limited to maintaining and supporting users that have licensed Logility Voyager Solutions products from American Software. Pursuant to the Technology License Agreement, American Software and Logility are required to disclose to one another any and all enhancements and improvements which they may make or acquire in relation to a Logility Voyager Solutions product, subject to confidentiality requirements imposed by third parties. The term of the Technology License Agreement is indefinite, although Logility may terminate the Technology License Agreement for cause, and American Software may terminate the Technology License Agreement at any time upon 60 days' prior written notice to Logility. Upon termination of the Technology License Agreement, all rights to Logility Voyager Solutions products licensed by Logility to American Software revert to Logility, while all rights to enhancements and improvements made by American Software to Logility Voyager Solutions products revert to American Software.

Stock Option Agreement

Logility granted American Software an option to purchase shares of Logility's Common Stock to enable American Software to maintain the necessary ownership percentage required to consolidate Logility in American Software's consolidated Federal income tax return. The purchase price of the option is the average of the closing price on each of the five business days immediately preceding the date of payment. American Software has never exercised such option.

Intercompany Loans

As a result of the various transactions between Logility and American Software, amounts payable to and receivable from American Software arise from time to time. As of January 31, 2009, Logility owed American Software approximately $650,000 of intercompany receivables.

Interlocking Directors and Executive Officers

Certain directors and executive officers of Logility also serve as directors and/or executive officers of American Software. J. Michael Edenfield serves as a director and the President and Chief Executive Officer of Logility, and he is also a director and the Executive Vice President of American Software. Vincent C. Klinges serves as the Chief Financial Officer of both Logility and American Software. James C. Edenfield serves as a director of both companies, is the President, Chief Executive Officer and Treasurer of American Software, beneficially owns 100% of the shares of American Software's Class B common stock (by virtue of a voting agreement with another director of American Software), and is the father of J. Michael Edenfield. Finally, James R. McGuone serves as the Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary of both Logility and American Software.

Employees of Logility, including its executive officers, participate in employee benefit plans sponsored by American Software. On some occasions, employees of Logility have received grants of options to purchase American Software stock. The compensation of J. Michael Edenfield, with the exception of grants of options to purchase American Software's stock, is established by the Compensation Committee of Logility's Board of Directors. The compensation of Messrs. Klinges and McGuone is established by the Compensation Committee of American Software's Board of Directors. Except as described above, there have not been during the past two years any negotiations, transactions or material contracts between American Software or its wholly owned subsidiaries or any of its executive officers, and Logility or its wholly owned subsidiary or any of its executive officers.

By virtue of its majority ownership of Logility's common stock, American Software exercises effective control over Logility's Board of Directors, but American Software has no agreement with Logility or any individuals regarding the nomination or election of Logility directors.

American Software's Plans for Logility; Certain Effects of the Offer

Assuming the Minimum Tender Condition is met, and the other conditions to the Offer are either met or waived, American Software has stated in the Offer to Purchase that it will consummate the Offer, and that it intends to hold shares of Common Stock acquired by it pursuant to the Offer. Following the purchase of shares of Common Stock pursuant to the Offer, American Software will own at least 90% of the outstanding shares of Common Stock and will cause Logility to consummate, as soon as reasonably practicable, the Merger. The new subsidiary will be the surviving corporation and will assume and succeed to all the assets and liabilities of Logility and will be called Logility, Inc.

Following the purchase of shares of Common Stock pursuant to the Offer, but before the Merger is consummated, Logility will continue as a publicly reporting company. When the Merger takes place, Logility will no longer have any publicly-traded equity securities outstanding, and American Software has stated that it intends to promptly cause Logility to terminate its public reporting obligations with the Commission once the requirements for terminating such obligations are satisfied. If the Merger is undertaken, shareholders at that time will be entitled to exercise their dissenters' rights under Georgia law to receive the fair value of their Shares by following the dissenter's rights procedures under Georgia law.

American Software has stated that, except as otherwise described in the Offer to Purchase, it has no current plans, proposals or negotiations which relate to or would result in: (i) an extraordinary corporate transaction, such as a merger (other than the Merger), reorganization or liquidation involving Logility; (ii) any purchase, sale or transfer of a material amount of assets of Logility; (iii) any material change in Logility's present dividend policy; (iv) any change in Logility's Board of Directors or management; or (v) any other material change in Logility's corporate structure or business (other than changes to integrate Logility and American Software in the event of the Merger).

American Software has stated that, in connection with the Offer, it expects to review Logility and its assets, corporate structure, capitalization, operations, properties, policies, management and personnel to determine what changes, if any, would be desirable following the Merger in order to best organize and integrate the activities of Logility and American Software, including evaluating the current members of Logility's Board of Directors in light of the termination of any director independence requirements once Logility becomes a wholly owned subsidiary. American Software has expressly reserved the right to make any such changes that it deems necessary or appropriate in light of its review or in light of future developments. In addition, American Software states that it regularly reviews acquisition opportunities in its industry and may pursue such opportunities when appropriate.

As a result of the Offer, American Software's interest in Logility's net book value and net earnings will increase to the extent of the number of shares of Common Stock acquired under the Offer. Following consummation of the Merger, American Software's interest in such items will increase to 100%, and American Software and its subsidiaries will be entitled to all benefits resulting from that interest, including all cash flow generated by Logility's operations and any future increase in Logility's value. Similarly, American Software will also bear the risk of losses generated by Logility's operations and any decrease in the value of Logility after the Merger.

When the Merger takes place, Logility will no longer have any publicly-traded equity securities outstanding, and American Software has stated that it intends to promptly cause Logility to terminate its public reporting obligations with the Commission once the requirements for terminating such obligations are satisfied. Accordingly, former shareholders of Logility will not have the opportunity to participate in the earnings and growth of Logility after the Merger and will not have any right to vote on corporate matters. Similarly, former shareholders of Logility will not face the risk of losses generated by Logility's operations or decline in the value of Logility after the Merger. Upon the completion of the Merger, American Software's interest in Logility would increase from 88% on a fully-diluted basis to 100%. Based on Logility's results for the fiscal quarter ended

January 31, 2009 and assuming completion of the short-form merger as of January 31, 2009, this increase would result in American Software's beneficial interest in Logility's net book value as of January 31, 2009 and net profit for the fiscal quarter ended January 31, 2009, increasing by approximately $6.1 million and $212,000, respectively.

According to the Offer to Purchase, the shares of Common Stock that may be tendered in the Offer include shares issuable upon exercise of Logility stock options; however, the Offer is only for shares and not the stock options themselves. Holders of vested and unexercised stock options may participate in the Offer by conditionally exercising their stock options or by unconditionally exercising their stock options and tendering the shares received upon exercise in accordance with the terms of the Offer. See "The Tender Offer" Section 3 "Procedures for Tendering Shares" in the Offer to Purchase, which is incorporated herein by reference. American Software has stated that it anticipates taking appropriate action to issue options to purchase shares of its Class A common stock in replacement of outstanding options to purchase Common Stock. The replacement stock options will have the same remaining term of exercisability, the same vesting status, an equivalent exercise price relative to fair market value after the conversion as before it, and covering that number of shares that will result in the same positive or negative spread value relative to the fair market value of American Software's Class A common stock. American Software has also stated that it anticipates that the issuance of replacement options would require it to file a registration statement with the Commission covering the shares of its Class A common stock that would be issued pursuant to the exercise of the replacement options. American Software has further stated that it anticipates that it will ask its shareholders to ratify these transactions at its 2009 annual meeting of shareholders to ensure the most favorable tax and securities-law treatment for the holders of stock options.

American Software has stated that it plans to work with the management of Logility to minimize disruption to Logility's workforce and to implement proper incentives for those personnel to continue working for the profitability of Logility after the Merger.

Conduct of Logility's Business if Offer Is Not Completed

American Software has also stated in the Offer to Purchase that, if the Offer is not completed, it expects that Logility's current management will continue to operate Logility's business substantially as presently operated, but anticipates that, if the Offer is not completed, it will reevaluate the capital structure and capital management policies of Logility and may consider:

not taking any action at that time, including not purchasing any shares of Common Stock, in which case the public shareholders of Logility would receive no cash for their shares (except through sales in the open market) and would bear the risk that the trading price per share could decline to a price that is less than the Offer Price;

purchasing shares of Common Stock in the open market or privately-negotiated transactions (including to acquire at least 90% of the outstanding shares so that American Software could consummate a short-form merger under Georgia law), and such purchases would be made at either market prices at the time of purchase or privately-negotiated prices, respectively, which may be higher or lower than or the same as the Offer Price;

making a new tender offer; and/or consummating a merger or other business combination with Logility, subject to compliance with Georgia law.

American Software has stated that, if it pursues any of these alternatives, it might take considerably longer for the public shareholders of Logility to receive any consideration for their shares of Common Stock (other than through sales in the open market) than if they had tendered their shares of Common Stock in the Offer. Any such transaction may result in proceeds per share of Common Stock to the public shareholders of Logility that are more or less than or the same as the Offer Price.

ITEM 4. The Solicitation or Recommendation

Position of the Special Committee

At a meeting held on May 14, 2009, the Special Committee unanimously determined that the Offer is fair to the shareholders of the Company, other than American Software and its affiliates. Accordingly, the Special Committee unanimously recommends, on behalf of the Company, that the Company's shareholders accept the Offer and tender their shares of Common Stock pursuant to the Offer.

The Special Committee made its determination after carefully considering the Offer, the prospects and value of the Company and other relevant facts and information, and after discussing such factors with the Special Committee's financial and legal advisors. The factors that were considered by the Special Committee in making its recommendation are described below under "Reasons for the Position."

Background of the Transaction

General

In November 1997, Logility completed its initial offering of shares of its Common Stock to the public. Prior to its initial public offering, Logility was American Software's wholly owned subsidiary. Immediately following Logility's initial public offering, American Software held approximately 81.7% of Logility's Common Stock. Since that time, American Software's percentage ownership of Logility has increased to the current level of approximately 88%, resulting from Logility's periodic repurchases of its Common Stock, as approved by its Board of Directors, partially offset by issuances of shares pursuant to the exercise of stock options and shares sold under an employee stock purchase plan. Subsequent to Logility's initial public offering, American Software has neither purchased nor sold any shares of Logility's Common Stock.

Since the Logility initial public offering, Logility's Board of Directors has included two individuals who also serve on American Software's Board of Directors, James C. Edenfield and J. Michael Edenfield. James C. Edenfield is also American Software's President, Chief Executive Officer, and Treasurer. J. Michael Edenfield is also American Software's Executive Vice President and the Chief Executive Officer of Logility. James C. Edenfield is the father of J. Michael Edenfield. In addition, the chief financial officer and controller of Logility during most of this period also have served as the chief financial officer and controller of American Software, as is the case at this time. Finally, James R. McGuone was recently appointed the Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary of both Logility and American Software.

Immediately prior to Logility's initial public offering, American Software entered into a series of intercompany agreements with Logility. The following is a summary of those agreements, including the payments made under those agreements in the fiscal years ended April 30, 2008 and April 30, 2007:

Tax Sharing Agreement. In accordance with Logility's Tax Sharing Agreement with American Software, Logility computes a separate, stand-alone income tax provision and settles balances due to or from American Software on this basis. Logility has an income tax related payable due to American Software of approximately $909,000 included as a component of "Due to American Software" in Logility's consolidated balance sheet as of April 30, 2008. In addition to other matters, Logility recognizes a payable to American Software when stock option benefits generated from exercises of options to purchase American Software's stock by Logility's employees are realized by Logility. However, all benefits derived from deferred tax assets, as defined in the Tax Sharing Agreement (which include net operating loss and tax credit carryforwards), that arose prior to the initial public offering (originally in the amount of $5,768,000, of which $1,333,000 was used in 1998) were allocated to American Software.

Services Agreement. Commencing August 1, 1997, Logility began purchasing (or selling) various services from (to) American Software based upon various cost methodologies as described below:

Service	Cost methodology	Expense for the year ended April 30, 2008	Expense for the year ended April 30, 2007
General corporate services, including accounting, insurance expense, and employee benefits services	Apportioned based on formula to all American Software's subsidiaries	$ 1,234,000	$ 1,285,000
Professional services to customers on behalf of Logility (services are available unless American Software determines it is not economic or otherwise feasible)	Cost plus billing with the percentage of costs and expenses to be negotiated	44,000	148,000

Facilities Agreement. Logility leases various properties from American Software for specified square foot rates. The stated term of the agreement was for two years and is renewed automatically thereafter for successive one-year terms; however, it may be terminated by either party after a 90-day notice. For the year ended April 30, 2008, and 2007, Logility recognized $428,000 and $417,000 of expense, respectively. Included in these expenses are utilities, telephone and security expenses.

Stock Option Agreement. Logility granted American Software an option to purchase shares of Logility's Common Stock to enable American Software to maintain the necessary ownership percentage required to consolidate Logility in American Software's consolidated Federal income tax return. The purchase price of the option is the average of the closing price on each of the five business days immediately preceding the date of payment.

Technology License Agreement. Logility granted to American Software a nonexclusive, nontransferable, worldwide perpetual right and license to use, execute, reproduce, display, etc., Logility's Supply Chain Planning and Execution Solutions (which American Software had transferred to Logility) so that American Software may maintain and support end-users of the software products. The license is fully paid and royalty-free.

As American Software has always held at least 80% of the Common Stock of Logility, American Software has included Logility within its consolidated financial statements. As stated above, at the time of its initial public offering, Logility issued to American Software an option to purchase shares of Common Stock to enable it to maintain the necessary ownership percentage required to include Logility in American Software's consolidated federal income tax return, as described above. American Software has never exercised such option.

From time to time, American Software engages in intercompany transactions with Logility pursuant to the above agreements, resulting in amounts payable by American Software to Logility or amounts payable by Logility to American Software. There is no formal loan agreement governing such amounts payable to or by Logility and American Software.

Logility and American Software each file periodic reports as public companies under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934. Logility and American Software each hold separate annual meetings of shareholders and issue separate reports of earnings on a quarterly basis.

History of the Tender Offer

On March 18, 2009, American Software issued a press release announcing its intention to purchase up to all of the outstanding shares of Common Stock of Logility not currently owned by it at a price of $5.10 per share net to the seller in cash, without interest, and that the proposed tender offer is expected to commence on or about April 10, 2009 and to expire on or about April 30, 2009, unless extended.

On March 20, 2009, the Board of Directors formed the Special Committee to review, evaluate, negotiate and, to the extent permitted by law, approve the proposed tender offer or any similar transaction that would result in American Software becoming the beneficial owner of all of the outstanding capital stock of the Company. On the same day, the Special Committee met and retained Jones Day as its legal counsel.

On March 25, 2009, the Special Committee met telephonically and determined to engage VRA Partners, LLC (VRA) as its financial advisor. At the same meeting, the Special Committee approved a conflicts waiver to the law firm of Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC (Baker Donelson), which has served as securities counsel for both American Software and the Company in the past and serves as legal counsel to American Software with respect to the Offer.

On March 27, 2009, the Special Committee issued a press release announcing that American Software's proposed tender offer will be considered by the Special Committee, and that the Special Committee has retained VRA as its financial advisor and Jones Day as its legal counsel.

On March 30, 2009, representatives of the Special Committee met telephonically with the counsel of the American Software special committee (the ASI Committee) and members of American Software's and Logility's management to discuss due diligence efforts on behalf of the Special Committee. Over the course of the following week, American Software's and Logility's management provided access to corporate records and other materials to the representatives of the Special Committee.

On April 9, 2009, representatives of VRA met telephonically with J. Michael Edenfield, the President and Chief Executive Officer of Logility (and a member of American Software's board of directors), and in person with Vincent C. Klinges, the Chief Financial Officer of both Logility and American Software, and James R. McGuone, the Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary of both Logility and American Software, to address business and financial questions in connection with VRA's analyses. On April 13, 2009, VRA met in person with Messrs. Edenfield, Klinges and McGuone to continue their discussion regarding Logility's business and financial matters.

On April 20, 2009, the Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with VRA and Jones Day during which VRA presented the preliminary results of its analysis with regard to the value of Logility. VRA reported that American Software's offer price of $5.10 per share would be well below the range of valuations suggested by the analysis. VRA was authorized to meet with James C. Edenfield to clarify, among other things, whether American Software has received any current offers from third parties to purchase American Software or Logility and whether American Software would be willing to sell its shares of Common Stock to a third party. At the same meeting, Jones Day noted that none of the directors of Logility, including the members of the Special Committee, had indemnification agreements with Logility. The Special Committee authorized Jones Day to draft a form of director indemnification agreement for the Special Committee to review and consider recommending to the full Board.

On April 21, 2009, VRA met with James C. Edenfield and James R. McGuone to discuss American Software's purpose for the Offer and its timing. Mr. Edenfield confirmed that American Software was not interested in selling its shares of Logility common stock to a third party, and that there were no third-party offers to purchase American Software currently known to, or being considered by, American Software.

Later that day, the Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with VRA and Jones Day to continue its discussion of VRA's analysis from the day before and to hear VRA's report on its meetings that morning. At this time, the Special Committee authorized Mr. Cooper to meet with James B. Miller, Chairman of the ASI Committee, to discuss the preliminary results of VRA's analysis with respect to the value of Logility.

On April 22, 2009, Mr. Cooper met with Mr. Miller. After discussion of VRA's analysis, Mr. Cooper informed Mr. Miller that American Software's offer of $5.10 per share was well below any range of valuations suggested by VRA's preliminary analysis. Mr. Miller requested that an oral summary of the methodology of VRA's analysis be provided to the ASI Committee.

On April 23, 2009, the Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with VRA and Jones Day, during which Mr. Cooper provided a summary of his April 22, 2009 meeting with Mr. Miller. Noting that the ASI Committee had not engaged a financial advisor in determining the offer price of $5.10 per share, the Special Committee authorized VRA to meet with Mr. Miller to discuss the valuation methods employed by VRA.

On April 30, 2009, VRA met with Mr. Miller and had the discussion regarding VRA's valuation methods.

On May 4, 2009, the Special Committee held a telephonic meeting during which Mr. Cooper announced his resignation from the Special Committee due to personal reasons. Mr. Cooper informed Mr. Miller of his resignation later that day.

On May 6, 2009, Mr. Miller spoke with Parker H. Petit to advise him that the ASI Committee had determined to increase the $5.10 per share offer price to $6.35 per share. Later that day, the Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with VRA and Jones Day to discuss VRA's updated analysis of the Company reflecting the revised offer price. After considering VRA's revised analysis, including the expressed doubt by VRA that it could issue a fairness opinion at that offer price, the Special Committee authorized Mr. Petit to contact Mr. Miller to inform him that the revised offer price was still too low. Later that day, Mr. Petit informed Mr. Miller of the Special Committee's views, and suggested that Mr. Miller have another discussion with VRA regarding the valuation methodologies supporting the Special Committee's position.

On May 7, 2009, VRA and Mr. Miller spoke about VRA's valuation methodology. VRA indicated that it would convey the substance of that conversation back to the Special Committee.

On May 8, 2009, the Special Committee held a telephonic meeting with VRA and Jones Day, during which VRA reviewed with the Special Committee the valuation arguments posed by Mr. Miller on behalf of the ASI Committee. The Special Committee then authorized VRA to call Mr. Miller again to review the valuation counter-arguments of the Special Committee. In a second telephone call later that day, Mr. Miller suggested to VRA that, after having reviewed with the other members of the ASI Committee the value analyses on various parameters, that the appropriate price for the tender offer might be $7.02 per share, without formally making an offer at that level.

On May 12, 2009, Baker Donelson informed Jones Day that the $7.02 per share offer price proposed on May 8, 2009 was, in fact, the ASI Committee's official revised offer price. Later that same day, the Special Committee met telephonically with VRA and Jones Day to discuss the revised offer price. At the meeting, VRA presented its revised analysis of Logility. The Special Committee preliminarily determined that the revised offer price was within the range of value which it deemed adequate, and VRA advised the Special Committee that such price was within the range of value such that VRA would likely be able to issue a fairness opinion. After a discussion led by Jones Day regarding the Special Committee's fiduciary duties, the Special Committee authorized Jones Day to convey those conclusions to Baker Donelson, together with non-financial conditions and requirements to the offer that the Special Committee would require for its recommendation of the offer to the Logility shareholders, namely (i) that the tender offer be conditioned upon the tender by a majority of the outstanding shares of Common Stock not owned by American Software or its affiliates or the directors and executive officers of American Software or Logility (other than the members of the Special Committee), (ii) that American Software be obligated to complete a short-form merger upon successful consummation of the Offer, and (iii) that American Software not make any retributive or coercive threats to Logility or its shareholders.

During a call between Jones Day and Baker Donelson shortly afterward, in which Jones Day conveyed the information to Baker Donelson, Baker Donelson confirmed that American Software was not interested in selling its shares of Logility common stock. Later that evening, Baker Donelson informed Jones Day that the ASI Committee and the full ASI board of directors approved the Offer with an Offer Price of $7.02 per share and all of the non-financial conditions and requirements required by the Special Committee.

On May 14, 2009, the Special Committee met with VRA and Jones Day to determine whether to recommend the offer to Logility's shareholders. VRA presented its final report on the valuation of Logility and, after discussion with the Committee, VRA delivered an oral opinion, which was subsequently confirmed in writing (a copy of which is attached hereto as Annex B), to the effect that, as of such date and based upon and subject to the assumptions made, matters considered and limitations of the review undertaken described in the opinion, the consideration to be paid in the Offer was fair, from a financial point of view, to the Logility shareholders, other than American Software and its affiliates. Jones Day reviewed the fiduciary duties of the Special Committee as well conducted a review for the Special Committee of the various factors considered by the Special Committee during the course of its deliberations as a committee. At the conclusion of the meeting, after confirming the various reasons discussed below, the Special Committee unanimously determined that the Offer is fair to the shareholders of Logility, other than American Software and its affiliates, and to recommend that the Company's shareholders accept the Offer and tender their shares of Common stock pursuant to the Offer.

Reasons for the Position

In reaching the determination and in making the recommendation described above, the Special Committee considered and discussed with its advisors a number of factors.

Supportive Factors

The Special Committee viewed the following factors as being generally supportive in coming to its determination and recommendation:

Financial and Business Information. The Special Committee took into account the historical and current financial condition, results of operations, business and prospects of the Company, the risks involved in achieving those prospects, and the conditions of the general economy and of the industries in which the Company operates. The Special Committee considered the level of deterioration and volatility in international and national economic conditions and the adverse impact of such factors on the Company's current financial condition and operating performance, as well as on market valuation of the Company and other companies in its industry.

Financial Analysis and Opinion of VRA. The Special Committee considered its discussions with VRA and the oral opinion of VRA delivered on May 14, 2009 (which was subsequently confirmed in writing by delivery of VRA's written opinion dated the same date), to the effect that, as of such date, and based upon and subject to the assumptions made, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken described in the opinion, the consideration to be paid in the Offer was fair, from a financial point of view, to the shareholders of the Company, other than American Software and its affiliates. The Special Committee also considered the presentation made by VRA on April 20, 2009, as updated on April 21, 2009, May 6, 2009, May 12, 2009 and May 14, 2009. All references in this Statement to VRA's presentation to the Special Committee shall be deemed to refer to the presentation made by VRA on April 20, 2009, as updated on April 21, 2009, May 6, 2009, May 12, 2009 and May 14, 2009. The full text of VRA's opinion is included as Annex B to this Statement, and VRA's presentation relating to such opinion is filed as an exhibit to the Schedule TO. Further discussion of the opinion of and the related presentation by VRA to the Special Committee is set forth below under Opinion and Presentation of the Financial Advisor to the Special Committee. The Special Committee was aware of the fees that VRA is entitled to receive as described in Item 5. Persons/Assets Retained, Employed, Compensated or Used in this Statement, which the Special Committee believed were designed to provide appropriate incentives for its financial advisor.

Revised Offer Price. The Special Committee considered the fact that the Offer Price is $1.92 higher than the $5.10 offer price initially announced by American Software on March 18, 2009, representing a 37.6% increase in the value of the consideration offered to the holders of shares of Common Stock.

Premium Relative to Market Prices. The Special Committee considered the current and historical trading prices of the shares Common Stock. Based upon the closing price of $5.00 on March 18, 2009, the date of American Software's public announcement of its intent to make the Offer, the Offer Price represents a 40.4% premium. In addition, the Offer Price reflects a 53.5% premium over the average closing price of shares of Common Stock for the 30 trading days immediately preceding that date.

Limited Market for Logility Stock. The Special Committee considered the fact that the market for the shares of Common Stock is less liquid relative to most other NASDAQ-listed companies because of the Company's relatively small public float. The Company's average daily trading volume over the last 12 months is 5,470 Shares, which ranks the Company within the fourth quartile of companies listed on NASDAQ in terms of average daily trading volume.

Controlled Company Status and Lack of Strategic Alternatives. The Special Committee took into account the fact that American Software currently owns approximately 88% of the outstanding shares of Common Stock and that American Software has stated it is not interested in selling any of the shares of Common Stock beneficially owned by it, thereby limiting Logility's strategic alternatives (including an acquisition by a third party). In addition, the Special Committee is not aware of any firm offers made by third parties (other than American Software) to acquire the Company during the past two years.

Majority of the Minority Condition. The Special Committee believes that the Minimum Tender Condition, which cannot be waived by American Software, would permit the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Common Stock not held by American Software or its affiliates or the directors and executive officers of American Software or Logility (other than the members of the Special Committee) to decide whether the Offer should be completed by choosing whether or not to tender their respective shares.

Timing of Completion. The Special Committee considered the anticipated timing of consummation of the Offer, which should allow shareholders to receive the Offer Price promptly, followed by the Merger in which remaining shareholders would receive the same consideration as received by shareholders who tender their shares in the Offer. In addition, American Software's commitment to effect the Merger as soon as reasonably practicable following consummation of the Offer provides a measure of assurance to the shareholders who choose not to tender their shares of Common Stock in the Offer that they also can receive equal value for their shares as soon as practicable.

Dissenters' Rights. The Special Committee considered the fact that, if the Offer is consummated and the Merger occurs, shareholders who do not tender their shares would be entitled to demand payment of a fair price, as determined by a court, for their Logility shares pursuant to Article 13 of the GBCC.

Potentially Negative Factors

The Special Committee considered the following factors to potentially be generally negative or not supportive in making its determination and recommendation:

Loss of Ability to Participate in the Future Growth of the Company. The Special Committee considered the fact that any shareholder who tenders all of its shares of Common Stock in the Offer or has its shares converted into cash in the subsequent Merger would cease to participate in the future earnings or growth, if any, of the Company or benefit from increases, if any, in the value of the Company, including any increases due to a general economic recovery.

Historical Market Prices. The Special Committee was aware of the fact that shares of Common Stock have historically traded at significantly higher levels than the Offer Price.

Risks the Offer and Merger May Not be Completed. The Special Committee considered the risk that the conditions to the Offer may not be satisfied and, therefore, that shares of Common Stock may not be purchased pursuant to the Offer and the Merger may not be consummated. The Special Committee considered the risks and costs to the Company if the Offer and the Merger are not consummated, including the diversion of management and employee attention, potential employee attrition and the potential effect on business and customer relationships.

Conflicts of Interest. The Special Committee considered the actual and potential conflicts of interest between the Company and American Software, whether in connection with the agreements described under Item 3. Past Contacts, Transactions, Negotiations and Agreements or otherwise, and of those directors, officers and employees of American Software who also serve as members of the Company's management and the Company's Board of Directors. However, the Special Committee believes that the process of using a Special Committee comprised solely of independent directors is a well-established mechanism under Georgia law to deal with this issue and believes that the Special Committee process effectively removed these conflicts as an issue. In addition, the existence of the Minimum Tender Condition further serves to mitigate any actual or potential conflict of interest.

Matters Not Considered in Determining Fairness of the Offer

Liquidation Value and Net Book Value. The Special Committee did not consider liquidation value because it believes that the Company is a viable going concern and American Software has stated that it wishes to continue to conduct the Company's business as a subsidiary of American Software. The Special Committee did not consider net book value, which is an accounting concept, because it believes that net book value does not present a meaningful valuation for the Company and its business, as the Company's value is derived from cash flows generated from its continuing operations. The Company's net book value per share of Common Stock as of April 30, 2008, calculated by dividing shareholders equity by the number of shares of Common Stock outstanding on such date, was $3.58.

Prior Negotiations with Potential Acquiror. Although no firm offers were made to acquire Logility in the past two years, in December 2007 and January 2008, Logility did receive several non-binding letters of intent from a private equity firm (Firm A) that expressed interest in acquiring all the outstanding stock of American Software and Logility. A discussion of those negotiations is set forth in Prior Negotiations and Contacts Related to Transactions Involving American Software and Logility. For the reasons set forth below, the Special Committee did not consider the discussions with Firm A in considering the fairness of the terms of the Offer:

The Special Committee believes that companies were valued by third parties differently in 2007 and early 2008 than in 2009 as a result of the general worsening of the economy and changes in the equity markets that occurred during that time period.

The NASDAQ Composite Index has shown dramatic volatility between May 22, 2007 and May 22, 2009, reaching a high of 2,859.12 on October 31, 2007 and a low of 1,268.64 on March 9, 2009. The Special Committee believes this volatility makes comparisons of valuations during 2007 and early 2008 to current valuations non-meaningful.

Discussions with Firm A never culminated in a binding agreement and therefore there is no way to determine what final price might have been established by the parties. Firm A's interest in Logility was contingent upon consummating a change-of-control transaction with American Software. In light of these considerations, the interest of Firm A in acquiring Logility contained too many contingencies to be a factor in making the Special Committee's recommendation.

Table of Contents

The foregoing discussion of the information and factors considered by the Special Committee is not intended to be exhaustive but is believed to include all material factors considered by the Special Committee. The Special Committee did not find it practicable to and did not quantify or otherwise assign relative weights to specific factors considered in reaching its determination and recommendation. Rather, the Special Committee viewed its determination and recommendation as being based on the totality of the information and factors presented to and considered by the Special Committee.

Prior Negotiations and Contacts Related to Transactions Involving American Software and Logility

From the fourth quarter of 2006 through the first quarter of 2008, American Software was intermittently involved in discussions with Firm A. In the fourth quarter of 2007 and first quarter of 2008, Firm A also expressed an interest in acquiring all the outstanding stock of Logility not already owned by American Software in connection with Firm A's proposed acquisition of American Software. Logility's material contacts and negotiations associated with the expression of interest of Firm A are described below.

On February 20, 2007, the Board of Directors of Logility met. At the meeting, James C. Edenfield, Chairman of Logility's Board of Directors, reviewed the status of the process American Software was involved in concerning preliminary inquiries from investment banks and private equity firms. The Board of Directors of Logility considered its obligations to take action in the event that American Software, its majority shareholder, engaged in a change-in-control transaction.

On November 14, 2007, the status of the renewed indication of interest from Firm A for a potential acquisition of American Software was discussed with the Board of Directors of Logility.

On November 29, 2007, Firm A submitted a non-binding letter of intent to Logility in which Firm A expressed its interest in acquiring all the shares of Logility not already owned by American Software. The proposed transaction was made in conjunction with the expressions of interest that Firm A made to acquire American Software, and consummation of the proposed transaction was contingent upon Firm A's successful acquisition of American Software.

On January 14, 2008, Firm A submitted a non-binding letter of intent to Logility in which Firm A expressed its interest in acquiring all the shares of Logility not already owned by American Software at a price in excess of the Offer Price. The transaction proposal was made in conjunction with the expression of interest that Firm A made to acquire American Software, and consummation of the proposed transaction was contingent upon Firm A's successful acquisition of American Software. The Board of Directors of Logility did not sign the non-binding letter of intent due to its concern that the proposed transaction with American Software was unlikely to be consummated and that incurring fees and expenses of a special committee and its advisors would be premature and unnecessary at that time.

On February 20, 2008, the Board of Directors of Logility was advised that Firm A had withdrawn its interest in acquiring all the shares of Logility not already owned by American Software, and the Board of Directors of Logility determined to end further discussions with Firm A regarding the proposed transaction.

Opinion and Presentation of Financial Advisor to the Special Committee

The Special Committee engaged VRA as its independent financial advisor in connection with the Offer. At a meeting of the Special Committee on May 14, 2009, VRA reviewed its financial analysis of the Offer and delivered its oral opinion (subsequently confirmed in writing) that, as of the date of such opinion and based upon and subject to certain matters stated therein, the consideration to be received in the Offer is fair, from a financial point of view, to the shareholders of Logility other than American Software and its affiliates.

The full text of the opinion of VRA, dated May 14, 2009, which sets forth the assumptions made, matters considered and limitations on the review undertaken, is attached as Annex B and is incorporated herein by reference. The description of the VRA opinion set forth herein is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the VRA opinion. Holders of Common Stock are urged to read the opinion in its entirety.

VRA's opinion is directed to the Special Committee and relates only to the fairness, from a financial point of view, of the consideration to be received by the shareholders of Logility other than American Software and its affiliates pursuant to the Offer. VRA's opinion does not address any other aspect of the Offer and does not constitute advice or a recommendation to any shareholder as to whether such shareholder should tender or how such shareholder should vote with respect to any matter relating to the Offer.

Edgar Filing: LOGILITY INC - Form SC 14D9

In arriving at its opinion, VRA assumed and relied upon the accuracy and completeness of the financial and other information provided to it by Logility without independent verification. With respect to the financial forecasts of Logility, VRA was advised by the senior management of Logility that they were reasonably prepared in good faith and reflected the best available estimates and judgments of the management of Logility. In arriving at its opinion, VRA did not conduct a physical inspection of the properties and facilities of Logility. VRA has not made or obtained any evaluations or appraisals of the assets or liabilities (including, without limitation, any potential environmental liabilities), contingent or otherwise, of Logility. VRA expresses no opinion as to the fairness of the Offer to creditors or other constituencies of Logility, nor does it address the contemplated benefits of the Offer. Among other things, VRA's opinion does not in any manner address the solvency, creditworthiness or liquidation value of any entity, or any other person under any applicable laws relating to bankruptcy, insolvency, fraudulent conveyance or similar matters.

VRA's opinion is limited to the fairness, from a financial point of view, to Logility's shareholders other than American Software and its affiliates of the consideration to be received in the Offer, and is subject to the assumptions, limitations, qualifications and other conditions contained in the opinion and does not address any other terms, conditions, aspects or implications of the Offer or any other agreement, arrangement or understanding entered into by the Logility or any other person in connection with the Offer or otherwise. VRA's opinion does not address the relative merits of the Offer as compared to alternative transactions or business strategies that may be available to Logility nor does it address Logility's underlying decision to engage in the Offer. Furthermore, VRA was not asked to, nor does it, offer any opinion as to any terms or conditions of the Offer to Purchase or the form of the Offer. In addition, VRA was not authorized to solicit and has not solicited any indications of interest from any third party with respect to the purchase of all or a part of Logility's business. Finally, VRA expresses no opinion on, and its opinion does not in any manner address, the fairness, financial or otherwise, of the amount or the nature of any compensation or consideration payable to, or received by, any officers, directors or employees of any parties to the Offer, or any class of such persons, relative to the offer price to be offered to the shareholders of Logility other than American Software and its affiliates in the Offer or otherwise.

VRA's opinion is necessarily based upon market, economic and other conditions as they existed and could be evaluated on, and on the information made available to VRA as of, the date of its opinion. The financial markets in general and the market for the common stock of Logility, in particular, are subject to extraordinary levels of volatility and uncertainty, and VRA's opinion does not address potential developments in the financial markets, the underlying valuation, future performance or long-term viability of Logility or the market for the common stock of Logility after the date of its opinion.

For purposes of its opinion, VRA assumed that:

the Offer would be consummated in accordance with the terms of the Offer to Purchase without any waiver of any material terms or conditions; and all governmental, regulatory or other consents or approvals (contractual or otherwise) necessary for the consummation of the Offer will be obtained without undue delay or any adverse effect on Logility on the expected benefits of the Offer.

Subsequent developments may affect VRA's opinion and VRA does not have any obligation to update, revise or reaffirm its opinion. The issuance of VRA's opinion has been approved by a fairness opinion review committee of VRA.

In preparing its opinion, VRA performed a variety of financial and comparative analyses, a summary of which are described below. The summary is not a complete description of the analyses underlying VRA's opinion. The preparation of a fairness opinion is a complex analytic process involving various determinations as to the most appropriate and relevant methods of financial analysis and the application of those methods to the particular circumstances and, therefore, is not readily susceptible to summary description. Accordingly, VRA believes that its analyses must be considered as an integrated whole and that selecting portions of its analyses and factors, without considering all analyses and factors, could create a misleading or incomplete view of the processes underlying such analyses and VRA's opinion.

In performing its analyses, VRA made numerous assumptions with respect to Logility, industry performance and general business, economic, market and financial conditions, many of which are beyond the control of Logility. The estimates contained in these analyses and the valuation ranges resulting from any particular analysis are not necessarily indicative of actual values or predictive of future results or values, which may be significantly more or less favorable than those suggested by such analyses. In addition, analyses relating to the value of businesses or securities do not purport to be appraisals or to reflect the prices at which businesses or securities actually may be sold. Accordingly, these analyses and estimates are inherently subject to substantial uncertainty.

VRA's opinion and analyses were only one of many factors considered by the Special Committee in their evaluation of the Offer and should not be viewed as determinative of the views of the Special Committee, the Board of Directors of Logility, or the management of Logility with respect to the Offer, the terms, or the consideration to be received by the shareholders of Logility other than American Software and its affiliates in the Offer. The consideration to be received by the shareholders of Logility in the Offer was determined on the basis of negotiations between Logility and American Software. The decision to enter into the Offer was made solely by the Special Committee.

The following is a summary of the material financial and comparative analyses presented by VRA in connection with its opinion to the Special Committee.

Analysis of Transaction Structure

VRA analyzed the value of the consideration of $7.02 per share in cash to be received pursuant to the Offer compared to certain financial data, including: revenue; revenue derived from maintenance fees; gross margin derived from maintenance fees; earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (EBITDA); earnings before interest and taxes (EBIT); net income; and tangible book value. The financial data was based on the following time periods: latest twelve months (LTM) ended April 30, 2009, the projected calendar year ending December 31, 2009 and the projected fiscal year ending April 30, 2010. For projected financial information, VRA used management projections, which were initially provided on April 3, 2009 and revised on May 13, 2009.

VRA made certain adjustments to Logility's reported GAAP financial results that were consistent with Logility's earnings press releases. Those adjustments consisted of excluding stock-based compensation expense and non-recurring items from the calculation of key profitability metrics including EBITDA, EBIT and net income.

Market Analysis of Selected Publicly Traded Reference Companies

Epicor Software Corporation

I2 Technologies, Inc.

JDA Software Group Inc.

Lawson Software, Inc.

Manhattan Associates, Inc.

Oracle Corp.

QAD Inc.

SAP AG

Edgar Filing: LOGILITY INC - Form SC 14D9

Table of Contents

For the selected publicly traded reference companies, VRA analyzed, among other things, enterprise value (defined as market capitalization plus debt less cash and cash equivalents) as a multiple of: LTM and Calendar 2009 revenue, LTM revenue derived from maintenance fees, LTM gross profit derived from maintenance fees, and LTM and Calendar 2009 EBITDA; and LTM EBIT. VRA also compared equity value as a multiple of LTM and Calendar 2009 net income and tangible book value as of April 30, 2009. All multiples were based on closing prices on May 12, 2009. Historical revenues, EBITDA, EBIT, net income, and balance sheet metrics were based on financial information available in public filings and press releases of the selected reference companies. Projected revenue, EBITDA, and net income estimates were based on Reuters consensus estimates provided by CapitalIQ. CapitalIQ makes available Reuters' compilation of estimates of projected financial performance for publicly traded companies produced by equity research analysts at investment banking firms.

In addition, VRA analyzed the current public trading float and average daily trading volume (one month, three months, and six months) for Logility and the publicly traded reference companies and noted that Logility had significantly less public trading float and average daily trading volume than any of the publicly traded reference companies and American Software.

The following table sets forth the average multiples indicated by the market analysis of selected publicly traded reference companies.

	All Reference Companies	Excluding SAP and Oracle
Enterprise Value as a Multiple of:

VRA prescribed full value for Logility's cash position at 100% and based upon the multiples derived from the analysis described above including all reference companies, and Logility's historical results, VRA calculated a range of implied equity values for Logility between $7.00 and $11.20 per share with an average equity value of $9.50 per share, and a median of $9.49 per share.

VRA noted that none of the companies used in the market analysis of selected publicly traded reference companies was identical to Logility and that, accordingly, the analysis necessarily involves complex considerations and judgments concerning differences in financial and operating characteristics of the companies reviewed and other factors that would affect the market values of the selected publicly traded reference companies.

Analysis of Precedent Merger and Acquisition Transactions

VRA reviewed and analyzed the consideration paid and implied transaction multiples in 54 selected completed and pending merger and acquisitions since April 2000 that VRA deemed relevant. The analysis consisted of transactions where majority ownership was purchased by the acquiring party and included a change of control premium. VRA noted that the Offer did not constitute a change of control transaction.

For the selected transactions, VRA analyzed, among other things, enterprise value as a multiple of LTM revenue, LTM EBITDA, and LTM EBIT. VRA also analyzed equity value as a multiple of LTM net income and book value. LTM revenue, EBITDA, EBIT, net income and book value were based on historical financial information available in public filings of the acquirer and/or target companies related to the selected transactions. VRA also analyzed the selected precedent transaction which had a total implied enterprise value of less than $100 million. The following table sets forth the multiples indicated by this analysis:

	All Precedent Transactions	Deal Value Less <$100m
Enterprise Value as a Multiple of:
LTM Total Revenue	1.49x	1.13x
LTM EBITDA	14.4x	12.0x
LTM EBIT	20.0x	18.3x
Equity Value as a Multiple of:
LTM Net Income	20.0x	18.3x
Tangible Book Value	3.56x	4.94x

Based upon the multiples derived from this analysis including all precedent transactions and Logility's historical results, VRA calculated a range of implied equity values for Logility in a change of control transaction between $8.55 and $18.18 per share with an average equity value of $13.15 per share, a weighted average equity value of $12.20 per share and a median equity value of $14.65 per share.

Based upon the multiples derived from this analysis including only those transactions which had implied enterprise transaction values of less than $100 million and Logility's historical results, VRA calculated a range of implied equity values for Logility in a change of control transaction between $7.40 and $20.31 per share with an average equity value of $13.29 per share, a weighted average equity value of $11.22 per share and a median equity value of $12.91 per share.

The following chart outlines the weighting which VRA applied to each valuation metric in order to derive a weighted average for the analysis described above:

	Weighting

LTM EBITDA	35.0%
LTM EBIT	10.0%
Equity Value as a Multiple of:
LTM Net Income	20.0%
Book Value	5.0%

VRA noted that no transaction considered in the analysis of selected precedent merger and acquisition transactions is identical to the tender offer. All multiples for the selected transactions were based on public information available at the time of announcement of such transaction, without taking into account differing market and other conditions during the period which the selected transactions occurred.

Discounted Cash Flow Analysis

VRA performed a five-year discounted cash flow analysis of Logility utilizing the projections provided by management on April 3, 2009 for the projected fiscal year ending April 30, 2010, as well as projected financial results for the years ending April 30, 2011 through 2014 based upon estimates by VRA that were consistent with expected future growth rates for the supply chain management software industry published by industry observers. VRA calculated a range of net present firm values for Logility over the projected time period using a weighted average cost of capital for Logility ranging from 15.00% to 25.00% and terminal value multiples of 2014 forecasted EBITDA ranging from 4.0x to 6.0x. The analysis indicated the following per share equity valuations for Logility:

Discounted Present Value of Equity Per Share

2014 Terminal Value EBITDA	Discount Rate
	15.00%	17.50%	20.00%	22.50%	25.00%

Premiums Paid Analysis

VRA analyzed the transaction premiums paid in two categories of merger and acquisition transactions involving publicly traded companies in the United States: (1) all transactions since January 1, 2004 in which the majority shareholder purchased the remaining shares of the target company that it previously did not own, and (2) all transactions since January 1, 2004 in which the target company operated in the application software industry sector. VRA analyzed the premiums paid in these two types of transactions based on the target company's stock price at one-day, five-days, and 30-days prior to the public announcement of the transaction. This analysis indicated the following premiums paid in the selected transactions:

	Majority Shareholder Purchasing Remaining Shares	Mean Premiums	Transactions in the Application Software Sector
One Day Prior to Announcement		23.5%	25.1%
Five Days Prior to Announcement		24.0%	27.5%
30 Days Prior to Announcement		24.8%	32.2%

Based on the mean premium for the reference transactions in which the majority shareholder purchased the remaining shares of the target company that it previously did not own, VRA calculated a range of implied equity values for Logility between $5.78 and $6.18 per share with an average implied equity value of $5.92 per share and median implied equity value of $5.81 per share. Based on the mean premium for the reference transactions in which the target company operated in the application software sector, VRA calculated a range of implied equity values for Logility between $5.98 and $6.25 per share with an average implied equity value of $6.12 per share and median implied equity value of $6.12 per share.

The Company has also agreed to indemnify VRA and certain related persons against certain liabilities arising out of or in conjunction with its rendering of services under its engagement, including certain liabilities under the federal securities laws.

Certain officers and employees of the Company may render services in connection with the Offer but they will not receive any additional compensation for such services.

In light of the mandate of the Special Committee with respect to the Offer and the retention of advisors to assist the Special Committee, a majority of directors who are not employees of the Company did not retain an unaffiliated representative to act solely on behalf of unaffiliated shareholders for purposes of negotiating the terms of the Offer and/or preparing a report concerning the fairness of the transaction.

Except as set forth herein, neither the Company nor any person acting on its behalf has employed, retained or compensated any person to make solicitations or recommendations to the shareholders of the Company on its behalf with respect to the Offer. The Company has not authorized anyone to give information or make any representation about the Offer that is different from, or in addition to, that contained in this Statement or in any of the materials that are incorporated by reference in this Statement. Therefore, the Company's shareholders should not rely on any other information.

ITEM 6. Interest in Securities of the Subject Company

Except as set forth in Item 1 of this Statement and in Schedule B to the Offer to Purchase, which schedule is incorporated by reference in this Statement, to the knowledge of the Company, no transaction in shares of Common Stock have been effected during the past 60 days by the Company or any executive officer, director, affiliate or subsidiary of the Company.

ITEM 7. Purposes of the Transaction and Plans or Proposals

Except as described or referred to in this Statement or the annexes and exhibits to this Statement or the Offer to Purchase, to the Company's knowledge, no negotiation is being undertaken or engaged in by the Company that relates to or would result in (i) a tender offer or other acquisition of shares of Common Stock by American Software, any of its subsidiaries or any other person, (ii) an extraordinary transaction, such as a merger, reorganization or liquidation, involving the Company or any of its subsidiaries, (iii) a purchase, sale or transfer of a material amount of assets of the Company or any of its subsidiaries or (iv) any material change in the present dividend rate or policy, or indebtedness or capitalization of the Company. Except as described or referred to in this Statement or the annexes and exhibits to this Statement or the Offer to Purchase, to the Company's knowledge, there are no transactions, board resolutions, agreements in principle or contracts entered into in response to the Offer which relate to or would result in one or more of the matters referred to in the preceding sentence.

ITEM 8. Additional Information

Merger

If the Minimum Tender Condition is met, and the other conditions to the Offer are either met or waived, and as a result American Software consummates the Offer and acquires at least 90% of the outstanding shares of Common Stock, then under Section 14-2-1104 of the GBCC, American Software will be able to effect the Merger after completion of the Offer, without prior notice to, or any action by, the Board of Directors or shareholders of the Company. The Offer to Purchase contains further details on how American Software would plan to effect the Merger.

Under Section 14-2-1103 of the GBCC, if American Software does not own at least 90% of the shares of Common Stock, approval of the Board of Directors of the Company and a majority of the shareholders of the Company entitled to vote thereon would be required to approve a merger of the Company with American Software or a subsidiary thereof. American Software presently has a sufficient number of votes to effect the shareholder approval of such a merger pursuant to Section 14-2-1103 of the GBCC, which approval could be effected by a vote at a meeting of shareholders or by written consent. However, in that event, due to the requirement to comply with the federal securities laws and regulations governing the solicitation of proxies (and the requirement to prepare and distribute a proxy statement or information statement) a longer period of time likely would be required to effect a merger, if any.

Dissenters' Rights

Under Georgia law, shareholders will not have dissenters' rights to payment of fair value of their shares of Common Stock in connection with the Offer. However, if the Merger is consummated, each holder of Common Stock at the effective time of the Merger will have the right under Article 13 of the GBCC to exercise dissenters' rights for payment of fair value of the holder's shares. The fair value determined by exercising dissenters' rights could be more or less than or equal to the price per share to be paid in the Merger. Dissenters' rights are described in the Offer to Purchase.

The foregoing discussion of the rights of shareholders seeking dissenters' rights under Georgia law does not purport to be a complete statement of the procedures to be followed by shareholders desiring to exercise any dissenters' rights available thereunder and is qualified in its entirety by reference to Article 13 of the GBCC. The perfection of dissenters' rights requires strict adherence to the applicable provisions of the GBCC. If a shareholder withdraws or loses his right to dissent, such shareholder will only be entitled to receive the price per share to be paid in the Merger, without interest.

Provisions for Unaffiliated Security Holders

The Company has made no provision in connection with the Offer to grant any unaffiliated securities holder access to its corporate files or to obtain counsel or appraisal services at the expense of the Company.

Certain Legal and Regulatory Matters

Except as set forth in this Statement and the annexes and exhibits to this Statement, the Company is not aware of any material filing, approval or other action by or with any governmental authority or administrative or regulatory agency that would be required for American Software's acquisition or ownership of the shares of Common Stock pursuant to the Offer. American Software has indicated that, should any such approval or other action be required, it contemplates (as of the date of the Offer to Purchase) that such approval or actions would be sought to be taken.

State Takeover Laws

Logility is incorporated under the laws of the State of Georgia. Generally, Article 11, Part 3 of the GBCC (the Business Combination Requirements) prevents an interested shareholder (including a person who owns or has the right to acquire 10% or more of the corporation's outstanding voting stock) from engaging in a business combination (defined to include mergers and certain other actions) with a Georgia corporation for a period of five years following the date such person became an interested shareholder unless the Board of Directors of the target approves the business combination or transaction that resulted in the shareholder becoming an interested party prior to the date the person becomes an interested shareholder. The Business Combination Requirements are not applicable to a Georgia corporation unless they are specifically made applicable in the bylaws of the corporation. Logility's bylaws incorporate the provisions of the Business Combination Requirements. Because, according to the Offer to Purchase, American Software has owned its shares for more than five years, it does not believe that the Business Combination Requirements would apply to the Offer or any short-form merger.

In addition, Article 11, Part 2 of the GBCC (the Fair Price Requirements) generally prevents an interested shareholder (including a person who owns or has the right to acquire 10% or more of the corporation's outstanding voting stock) from engaging in a business combination (defined to include mergers and certain other actions) with a Georgia corporation without either (i) obtaining the unanimous approval by the continuing directors, (ii) obtaining the recommendation of at least two-thirds of the continuing directors and approval of a majority of the non-interested shareholders or (iii) paying the amount per share determined under the Fair Price Requirements. However, the Fair Price Requirements do not apply (i) to a Georgia corporation unless they are specifically made applicable in the bylaws of the corporation and (ii) to a business combination with an interested shareholder that has remained an interested shareholder for at least the previous three years and has not increased its percentage ownership of the corporation by more than one percent any 12 month period during the previous three years. Logility's bylaws do not incorporate the provisions of the Fair Price Requirements and, therefore, according to the Offer to Purchase, American Software believes that the Fair Price Requirements would not apply to the Offer or any short-form merger. Even if the Fair Price Requirements were applicable to the Offer or any short-form merger, according to the Offer to Purchase, American Software has owned its shares for more than three years and believes, therefore, that the Fair Price Requirements would not be applicable.

Logility conducts business in a number of states throughout the United States, some of which have enacted takeover laws. According to the Offer to Purchase, American Software has not determined whether any of these state takeover laws and regulations will by their terms apply to the Offer, and, except as set forth above, it has not presently sought to comply with any state takeover statute or regulation. According to the Offer to Purchase, American Software is reserving the right to challenge the applicability or validity of any state law or regulation purporting to apply to the Offer, and neither anything in the Offer to Purchase nor any action taken in connection therewith is intended as a waiver of such right. In the event it is established that one or more state takeover statutes is applicable to the Offer and an appropriate court does not determine that such statute is inapplicable or invalid as applied to the Offer, American Software might be required to file certain information with, or to receive approval from, the relevant state authorities, and American Software might be unable to accept for payment or pay for shares of Common Stock tendered pursuant to the Offer, or be delayed in consummating the Offer. In addition, if enjoined, American Software might be unable to accept for payment any shares tendered pursuant to the Offer, or be delayed in continuing or consummating.

Opinion of Financial Advisor

May 14, 2009

Special Committee of the Board of Directors

Logility, Inc.

470 East Paces Ferry Road, N.E.

Atlanta, Georgia 30305

Gentlemen:

We understand that American Software, Inc. (ASI) intends to purchase all of the outstanding shares of common stock of Logility, Inc. (the Company) not currently owned by ASI and its affiliates at a price per share of $7.02 in cash through a tender offer (the Proposed Transaction). The terms and conditions of the Proposed Transaction are set forth in more detail in the draft Offer to Purchase and related tender offer documents dated May 14, 2009 (the Tender Offer Materials). We further understand that approximately 88% of the Company's outstanding common shares are owned by ASI.

You have requested that we render our opinion to the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of the Company as to the fairness, from a financial point of view, to the common stockholders of the Company other than ASI and its affiliates of the consideration to be received in the Proposed Transaction.

We express no opinion on, and our opinion does not in any manner address, the fairness, financial or otherwise, of the amount or the nature of any compensation or consideration payable to, or received by, any officers, directors or employees of any parties to the Proposed Transaction, or any class of such persons, relative to the offer price to be offered to the stockholders of the Company other than ASI and its affiliates in the Proposed Transaction or otherwise.

In arriving at our opinion, we reviewed and analyzed: (1) the Tender Offer Materials, the drafts of which we assume to be identical to the final definitive Offer to Purchase and related tender offer documents in all material respects; (2) such other publicly available information concerning the Company which we believe to be relevant to our inquiry; (3) certain internal financial and operating information with respect to the business, operations and prospects of the Company furnished to us by the Company; (4) historical trading information with respect to the Company's and ASI common stock and a comparison of that trading history with those of other publicly traded companies which we deemed relevant; (5) a comparison of the historical financial results and present financial condition of the Company with those of publicly traded companies which we deemed relevant; (6) certain historical data relating to percentage premiums paid in acquisitions of selected minority interests and to percentage premiums paid in acquisitions of selected publicly traded software companies that we deemed relevant; and (7) certain financial terms of the Proposed Transaction and publicly available financial terms of certain other recent transactions which we deemed relevant. In addition, we have had discussions with the management of the Company concerning its business, operations, assets, financial condition and prospects and undertook such other studies, analyses and investigations as we deemed appropriate.

Furthermore, we have not been asked to, nor do we, offer any opinion as to any terms or conditions of the Tender Offer Materials or the form of the Proposed Transaction. In addition, you have not authorized us to solicit, and we have not solicited, any indications of interest from any third party with respect to the purchase of all or a part of the Company's business. Our opinion is necessarily based upon market, economic and other conditions as they exist on, and can be evaluated as of, the date of this letter. These conditions have been and remain subject to extraordinary levels of volatility and uncertainty, and we express no view as to the impact of such volatility and uncertainty on the Company or the Proposed Transaction. We express no opinion as to the underlying valuation, future performance or long-term viability of the Company. It should be understood that, although subsequent developments or circumstances may affect this opinion, we do not have any obligation to update or revise the opinion. The issuance of this opinion has been approved by a fairness opinion review committee of VRA Partners, LLC.
