On August 2, 2001, H. Lawrence Culp, Jr., President and Chief Executive Officer of Danaher Corporation ("Danaher"), sent the following letter to Danaher associates:

Dear Danaher Associates,

An interesting day, to say the least!

Hopefully, all of you have had the chance to read the press release we issued yesterday morning, as well as my accompanying internal letter to Danaher associates. These two pieces of information should help you understand the rationale behind this exciting opportunity. If you're interested in more detail, links to Cooper's publicly available information as well as a replay of the conference call we held for investors yesterday morning can be accessed through mydanaher.com.

However, I know many of you are interested in more than the strategy and mechanics of this merger. "What happens next?" and "what does this mean for me personally?" are the two most common questions I've heard.

The answer to the first question is simple. The Cooper Board of Directors has indicated that it will meet next week and we are optimistic that they will consider our proposal at that time, and agree to work with us to quickly achieve a mutually beneficial negotiated transaction. Subsequent activities will depend on the outcome of this Board meeting.

Regarding the second question, we think the proposed transaction is great news for Danaher associates, though we will know much more once we have had an opportunity to perform due diligence at Cooper - to "look under the hood," so to speak. Although my communications are bound by certain legal restrictions (we cannot selectively provide information only to Danaher associates), please be assured that as relevant information becomes available I will provide it to you. We will be using the Cooper Acquisition Info knowledge area on mydanaher.com as a focal point for all communications.

Over the coming weeks there will be many distractions as this situation unfolds, and you are likely to see some volatility in Danaher's share price (which is typical in these sorts of situations). We cannot allow these issues to impact the performance of our fine company, and I ask that you stay focused on our strategic priorities and on delivering our usual top-notch results.

Finally, please also remember that our communications in the coming weeks may contain certain forward-looking statements and that actual financial results may differ from those predicted.

Sincerely,

Larry

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This presentation contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act and Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act. In some cases, you can identify these so-called "forward-looking statements" by words such as "may," "will," "expects," "plans," "believes," "estimates," "predicts," "potential," or words of similar tenor. These forward-looking statements are based on management's good faith expectations and beliefs concerning future developments, but you are cautioned that actual events or results may differ materially from the expectations expressed in such forward-looking statements as a result of various factors, including risks and uncertainties, many of which are beyond the control of Danaher Corporation ("Danaher"). Factors that could cause actual results to differ materially include, but are not limited to: (1) the businesses of Danaher and Cooper Industries, Inc. ("Cooper") may not be integrated successfully or such integration may be more difficult, time-consuming or costly than expected; (2) expected combination benefits from the transaction may not be fully realized or realized within the expected time frame; (3) Cooper may not be able to meet Danaher's expectations and revenues following the transaction may be lower than expected; (4) operating costs and business disruption, including difficulties in maintaining relationships with employees, customers or suppliers, may be greater than expected following the transaction; (5) the regulatory approvals required for the transaction may not be obtained on the proposed terms or on the anticipated schedule; (6) the effects of legislative and regulatory changes (particularly environmental regulations) which could affect demand for products in the Process/Environmental Controls segment; (7) unanticipated developments that could occur with respect to contingencies such as environmental matters and litigation; (8) technological changes; (9) changes in labor or capital costs; (10) Danaher's ability to attract and retain qualified employees; (11) future acquisitions, strategic partnerships and divestitures; (12) general business and economic conditions; and (13) other risks described from time to time in Danaher's periodic reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC"). Danaher disclaims any duty to update any forward-looking statements, all of which are expressly qualified by the foregoing.
